

Most 2016 – Tuesday

Hello guys, here are your beloved Christin and Mimi. We have to write a report about the Tuesday when we were in Most. More especially it was on the 8th November 2016. It was the day the first snow that fell this year.

That day was pretty long but really a lot of fun!

First to mention is that Mimi went to school with the bus for the first time. I, Christin, was a little bit worried because she is a clumsy type of person and so I called her. She luckily made it to school. Really impressive, I have to say. Moreover Mimi said she has a good orientation except in the dark. That is a new thing I have about her.

At school we were doing like always presentations about sustainability but back then we were in international groups and discussed what jobs we rather want to work in. It was a comparison between working in a company and working in a social organization.

In our opinion we chose to work in a company because we think the impact of helping people and the environment will be much larger. It's true that we won't help them directly like approaching them but we are going to help a big group of people indirectly by donating our money/salaries.

It was a great discussion between the groups and we felt that we got to know each other slowly as we were in the international groups.

After that we also had another group project between internationals.

This time it was just a small group of three people. In that group we had to produce our own online-vocabulary in relation with the topic "sustainability". It was really fun and it seemed that Mimi enjoyed it the most. "I laughed a lot during that time and I got closer to my Czech partner in my group". It's an unforgettable memory.

As we found all the words we think are important, we afterwards were divided back into our national groups to record all the words we had. In our German group Paul did a great job saying all these words.

Then in our school break we were making plans for the after school activity.

And oh, we've forgotten to say that in the school canteen we ate either chicken with mashed potatoes or noodles. No more comment about that because food is not that important but because it is a report, we have to mention everything we did. So by the way I, the clumsy Mimi Vu, fell down the stairs. And that was the reason why I twisted my ankle and couldn't participate in the little dancing contest on our last day before going back to Germany. It was such a pity.

Well, more importantly we made plans going to the laser game at 6pm to 7pm.

Before that, we both went to the shopping mall with Jaroslava, Anna Lena and Terka.

In NewYorker, a clothes shop, we met Hana and Tomasz. They were searching for new clothes. We heard that Tomasz wanted a new style, so I and Christin happily volunteered to help him. We did a great job finding him clothes and until today we are still proud of us! Seeing him happy and thankful like this was really cute and we will never forget that.

The next thing was to visit a hairdresser with him but it was such a looong journey! We went to seven different hairdressers but no one had time for us. The last one, the 8th salon, was a success! He is satisfied with his new hairstyle and so are we.

Thereafter we had to depart. It was around 5pm.

Well, we both went to Jaroslava's house (Jaroslava is, by the way, the host of Christin) and we relaxed there a little bit before going to the laser game center. She lives near there and so we just walked to the meeting place.

It was for us the first time playing laser game and it was a nice and funny experience! Mimi's host sister Tereza was there, too, and Mimi was really happy about her appearance.

The score was made: Christin was the best and was first with Lenka. Mimi failed and was 9th out of 12 though. She said it was not her fault being bad because Lenka was the one, who was always shooting at her. We had a great time and we definitely want to play that game again!

The time was short but we all enjoyed it. We went back to our host families and spend our time with them. Mimi remembered talking with her host sister for a pretty long time until 10pm. Christin also talked and relaxed with her host sister Jaroslava.

All in all it was a great day for all of us and we experienced many things we did for the first time and the most important part was that we were getting closer to the other Erasmus participants.

Last but not least we just want to say thank you to everyone!

We love you and we will miss you guys.
